The South Bay (Postcard History Series)

James Osborne, Marilyn Ron, Jerry Roberts : The South Bay (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The South Bay (Postcard History Series):

Los Angeles County's South Bay is referenced by the lower arc of Santa Monica Bay and includes the communities between El Segundo on the north and Palos Verdes Peninsula on the south, eastward to the Long Beach border. Roughly defined over the years as the coverage area of the Daily Breeze newspaper, as well as the confines of the South Bay Council of Governments, the South Bay always has been much more than the beautiful coastlines of Manhattan, Hermosa, and Redondo Beaches, as seen in these vintage postcards. It was, as it is today, also the residential and workaday worlds of Torrance, Hawthorne, Lawndale, Inglewood, Gardena, Lomita, Carson, and the Los Angeles Harbor communities.

About the Author James Osborne, Lawndale city councilman and historian and author of Arcadia Publishing's book on Lawndale, and Marilyn Ron, owner of Antique Attic in Torrance, pooled postcard collections with Jerry Roberts, author of Arcadia Publishing's books on Hermosa Beach and Hawthorne, to present these bygone scenes, the majority of which have never before been collected in a volume.
